Section III

The scope of claims 29-32 is indeterminate. See also PCT Rule 6.2(a).

Section V

- 1). The nearest prior art is considered to be EP-A-0 658 014 (D1).
- 2). D1 discloses a satellite communications system where, if congestion occurs within a spot beam, certain classes of subscriber units are inhibited by broadcasting a parameter set of inhibited users on a broadcast channel in the beam.
- Neither D1 nor any of the other available prior art suggests determining the 3). location of a subscriber unit on the earth, informing the subscriber unit in which of a plurality of zones it lies, informing the subscriber unit which zones are congested and then having the subscriber undertake congestion-control measures if the subscriber unit determines itself to be located within a congested zone. This has the advantage that the zones in which anti-congestion measures are instigated can be smaller than the whole footprint of a beam.
- Thus the subject-matter of claims 1 and 8 and their dependent claims is 4). considered to be novel and to involve an inventive step.

Section VII

- 1). The features of the claims are not provided with reference signs placed in parentheses (Rule 6.2(b) PCT).
- 2). Contrary to the requirements of Rule 5.1(a)(ii) PCT, the relevant background art disclosed in the document D1 is not mentioned in the description, nor is this document identified therein.

Section VIII

1). The scope of claims 15 and 22 is unclear (Article 6 PCT) because, although these claims ostensibly relate to a user terminal and an earth station respectively, in fact they define additionally responses of other parts of the system in such a manner that it is not clear whether these are limitations on the scope of the claim or not (example: claim 22, is so-worded that a characterising feature of the earth station appears to be that the user terminals observe congestion control measures). N.B. a similar objection applies to the corresponding statements of invention on pages 5-7 of the description. By extension the claims dependent on claims 15 and 22 are also unclear.
